CHANGING LIVES

VOLUNTEERS IN THE HUNGER RELIEF KITCHEN.

Dear Friends:

Partnership is a word we hear a lot these days in the not-for-profit world. We all are working together more closely than ever; hard economic times bring us more people in need, and oftentimes fewer resources with which to serve them.

To us, partnership means all of us working together to make an impact on hunger and poverty in greater Indianapolis. The past year was one in which we stretched our resources, knowledge, and expertise, and, in the true spirit of partnership, helped our hungriest neighbors get through the toughest times of their lives.

Who do we serve? Children — many of whom wouldn't have a nutritious meal today if Second Helpings didn't provide it. The homeless — sadly, a growing demographic in our city. The elderly — struggling to balance buying groceries or buying medicine. Through our partnerships with community centers, daycares, missions, and others — not to mention all of our wonderful donors and volunteers — we feed more than 2,900 of our hungriest neighbors, six days a week. In fact:

- Second Helpings provides food to 74 social service agency partners, saving these agencies $2 million a year.
- We partner with over 600 volunteers, who worked for us a record-breaking 30,628 hours in 2010 — equal to 15 full-time employees.

- The Culinary Job Training program partners with instructors, chefs, businesses, and community organizations to make sure our students learn great culinary skills — and life skills.
- Second Helpings had a 20% increase in meal production in 2010. Our food donors stepped up. At a time when they could have pulled back, they kept giving.

We all did our part in 2010 — donors, volunteers, employees, agencies — all of us together. Every agency that needed meals from us got them.

The Second Helpings Culinary Job-Training Program has been granted the American Culinary Federation Education Foundation (ACFEF) Quality Program Certificate for quality culinary art programs. We are the only training school our size in the country to be awarded this prestigious certificate. Thanks to all who made this happen for our graduates, including our friends at Ivy Tech and the local chapter of the American Culinary Federation, who sponsored our application.

We're also pleased to report that Second Helpings received an "Exceeds Standards" rating as an Excellent Agency from United Way during the biennial evaluation. These results will positively impact our base allocation funding starting in the 2011 funding cycle and beyond.

Media continued to play a big part in spreading the word about Second Helpings, expanding our awareness and helping us cultivate new donors. We used a paid media plan that coincided with normal marketing and fundraising activities; we also were recognized in many publications and events, including: NUVO, The Indianapolis Star, Indianapolis Business Journal, Urban Times, NCAA Final Four, Art of the Matter, and many others.

In the past year, our outreach included a broader relationship with St. Vincent dePaul Client Choice Pantry. We invited Pete Withey to speak to our board and included St. Vincent dePaul in our board retreat agency visits. A mutually beneficial partnership exists with this tremendous volunteer-driven organization.

We also continued to pursue our interests in truly eliminating hunger in our community. We participated with Elders at the Table (EAT), a consortium of providers, stakeholders, and funders who are identifying the needs, opportunities, and challenges to feed and advocate for the seniors within our community. We also took steps to identify ways we can support hunger relief efforts in the counties surrounding Indianapolis. Working with United Way and a group of Hamilton County nonprofit leaders, we launched two pilot programs in Noblesville: one through First United Methodist Church, and the other through the Boys and Girls Club. In addition, we began a relationship supporting the Lebanon Boys & Girls Club through their Kids Care Program.

Also, we continue to meet with Douglas Hairston in the mayor's office and the Indianapolis Food Resource Network group to address hunger in our city. We have reported back to the participants in our fall summit with our lessons learned. The Network leaders held neighborhood meetings within the townships to continue conversations about how local pantries can work together to facilitate feeding more people.

Finally, I'd like once again to thank all of our partners. We've forged many wonderful partnerships over the years — with business, agencies, and individuals. The need for Second Helpings' services may be greater than ever. It's a challenge we're prepared to meet — together.

Earning high marks.

The Second Helpings Culinary Job-Training Program was honored as a “Program of Excellence” by the American Culinary Federation Education Foundation. Additionally the ACFEF recognized it as a “Quality Program.” Quality Program status is no small feat; it’s awarded to programs that require fewer than 1,000 hours, but whose mission, curriculum, teaching methods, and outcomes match the quality standards of the American Culinary Federation. “This verifies what we’ve always believed,” Second Helpings Chef Carl Conway said. “This endorsement will allow our graduates to go into the culinary workforce with another stamp of approval.”

CHEF JEFF BRICKER TEACHING FRESH BREAD BAKING.

Quality in the classroom.

This past year, students in our Culinary Job-Training Program were treated to guest lectures from some of the best in the business. Chef Jeff Bricker, Program Chair of Hospitality Administration at Ivy Tech, shared his knowledge of classical French cuisine with students. And Chef Roger Duran of BARcelona Tapas imparted wisdom gleaned from many years of fine dining experience – both in Indianapolis and in other parts of the country.

Second Helpings provides nutritious meals to adults and children throughout the entire Indianapolis region.

SECOND HELPINGS VOLUNTEER HAL COLE RECEIVES RECOGNITION FROM INDIANAPOLIS MAYOR GREG BALLARD.

Awards and recognition.

Thanks to the outstanding work of our volunteers, Second Helpings won the Jefferson Award for Nonprofit Volunteer Program of the Year in 2010. The award is presented annually to an agency that effectively uses volunteers to further their mission and help the community.

Second Helpings volunteer Hal Cole was presented with the Mayor's Community Service Award in 2010 — an award that recognizes Indianapolis citizens who make notable contributions and commitments to community service. Hal's work has made a major impact — not only at Second Helpings, but also in the Indianapolis community at large.

“Best of the Best.”

For the past 10 years, the Indiana Achievement Awards has recognized Indiana’s best-run, most-effective nonprofits. The IAA recognized Second Helpings for being among the “Best of the Best” nonprofits in the Indiana, citing its “innovation, sustainability and impact.” Second Helpings is the only three-time winner of this prestigious award.

CORNELIUS COOPER, HIS MOTHER AND JERRY ADAMS

Worthy of a ROSE.

Less than a year after graduating from the Culinary Job-Training Program, Cornelius Cooper wasted no time making a good impression. He was nominated for a ROSE Award (Recognition of Service Excellence) by one of his customers at Levy Restaurants at Conseco Fieldhouse. ROSE Awards honor hospitality employees or volunteers who exemplify excellent customer service. These are industry champions who, through one-on-one or behind-the-scenes contact, positively influence a visitor’s experience in Indianapolis.

Harvest comes home.

In an effort to bring people closer to the front lines at Second Helpings, we hosted our popular food and wine fundraiser, Harvest, in our own facility. “Harvest at Home” gave visitors a first-hand look at how Second Helpings sends out approximately 2,900 meals a day while helping disadvantaged adults work for a new shot at life.

120 WEST MARKET FRESH GRILL AT HARVEST.

Indianapolis Food Resource Network.

Second Helpings has been meeting with Douglas Hairston of the Mayor's Front Porch Alliance and the Indianapolis Food Resource Network to address hunger in our city. The objective: To meet the needs of hungry neighbors by bringing more than 200 hunger-fighting groups in Indianapolis together in a collaborative effort. By sharing ideas and resources, IFRN aims to improve overall hunger relief efforts in Indianapolis. We will continue to be a key partner in the IFRN, focusing on issues that are critical to our mission, such as ending childhood hunger, meeting the needs of the elderly, and expanding the availability of congregant meals to those in need.

BECKY FOX AND JOHN CRIFE SERVE UP CHILI ON THE CIRCLE.

Chili on the Circle.

Employees from the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department, the Indianapolis Fire Department, and the Indiana State Police challenged their friends in the local media to a chili cook-off. The winning recipe was served during the first-annual Chili on the Circle – a new benefit for Second Helpings. And with the generous support of Kroger, it has become an annual event, strengthening our community partnerships and raising awareness of our mission throughout Indianapolis.

24-HOUR WEB PROJECT.

24-hour web project.

Second Helpings teamed up with local web developers SmallBox for a unique challenge: Design, develop, and launch a new Second Helpings website in under 24 hours. The new website featured streamlined navigation, photo galleries, a blog, and a Twitter feed, providing various mediums to tell the many stories of Second Helpings. "This project was the perfect opportunity to spread the word about a great organization, while creating a website that will build awareness," SmallBox CEO Jeb Banner said.

Recognizing commitment.

For the second straight year, Second Helpings awarded the Time, Talent and Treasure Award to a supporter who embodies those three qualities: A person who volunteers, gives knowledge and skill, and offers generous financial support. This year's award was presented to Jennifer Vigran, a longtime Second Helpings volunteer, donor, and board member.
